think charlie and the chocolate factory crossed with the soda fountain in it's a wonderful life, and you will begin to have a visual of à la mère de famille. this is a truly magical place. la mère has probably been making some of these same candies (marzipan frogs! butterscotch buttons! candied violets!) since it opened in the 1700s. they have some modern sweet treats, too, but of the chocolate euro coin variety—no exploding sour rocks here.

imbibe:
large selection of teas

devour:
candied fruits
marzipan in every shape
eiffel tower chocolates
candied violets
toffee nuts
ice cream
